

STARGATE SUPERFAN PANEL PROJECT - FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS – 01.25.19

- Is this project officially sanctioned by MGM?
Yes! This is legit, folks, and we've got approval from top the whole chain of command.
- How do you upload all of the releases and your Photo ID?
You'll need to print and fill out each of the releases, and then scan those releases with your Photo ID. When you submit your video, you'll see a place to attach a Talent, Location and Materials Releases. You should include your Photo ID with your Talent Release.
- What if I don't have a Photo with my government ID, or I have a Student ID?
You are required to have a Valid Passport to submit, and you can use that as your Photo ID.
- Do you need a location release if you shoot in your home? Or against a greenscreen?
Yes, you need a location release no matter where you shoot. The purpose of the location release is to show that you have permission to film wherever you filmed. In most cases this is easy – if you film where you live, you can sign your own release – but we're asking for a release in case you get creative and film somewhere else.
- Are there any limitations on the locations I can use for my video?
No, as long as you are legally able to film somewhere and you can provide a location release.
- Do I have to appear in my video submission?
Yes, Stargate Command wants to meet you, and we think video is the best medium for you to express yourself and your commitment as a fan.
- How does transportation work if I'm international, especially after the first Superfan event in Los Angeles?
If you're selected by Stargate Command, a Tongal producer will reach out to you directly and help to coordinate air travel and a hotel stay for your trip to the Superfan Event in Los Angeles. Most of what you'll be asked to do can be done remotely – via conference calls, Skypes, or email. Stargate Command will try to host a fan event in your local area, but if there's something else that they want you to attend that requires travel, they'll reach out to discuss logistics.
- Is it mandatory that we travel to Los Angeles for the Superfan event, or other panel events?
We want to include every type of fan on this panel, and since Stargate Command is handling travel and stay, hopefully we're making that possible for everyone. However, if travel presents a real problem for you, that's an easy conversation for us to have. We don't want travel to get in the way of your participation if you've got something awesome to offer the superfan panel.
- What's the time commitment for being on the panel?
The first kick-off event in Los Angeles is a three day trip, and you'll be briefed at that event on what kind of initiatives you'll be a part of, and what that might require. Winners may be invited for monthly "State of the Gate" calls between the Stargate Command team and the Superfan Panel, and may be asked to attend, and assist with the running of, Stargate Command fan events in their local area, as well contribute to forum events on the Stargate Command platform, beta test new products and platforms, and provide feedback on new content initiatives. What this entails will be discussed, and we don't want to overwhelm you.

- Can I showcase my appearance in fan-made films, screenshot my website analytics, YouTube view counts, Twitter conversations, etc.?

You should avoid including ANY third party materials, so if you do not own or control the rights, try to think of other ways that you can communicate the information you want to communicate. For example, you can tell us your YouTube view counts, show us numbers on-screen, or read off quotes from people who love your cosplay skills. You can also give us your screennames or point us to your YouTube channel we'll check it out after we see your video. If you really think you need to include something and you're still not sure whether you can, or how you can, ask us at info@tongal.com

- Can I include custom-made Stargate-themed backgrounds, visuals, or animations from work that I've done? Or custom-made outfits like a dress or costume?

Yes, if you control the rights to the content, you may include it, but you cannot use any third-party content, and you cannot use any audio or visual elements from the Stargate movie or TV shows, so it has to be completely original stuff. If it's a costume, or props, all Stargate memorabilia is fine, so you should be okay there, even if you didn't create it yourself.

- What if my phone has a bad camera? Or I can't edit my video and use on-screen text or graphics?

That's totally fine! We want you to showcase your passion, your knowledge, and how you express your love of Stargate, and that doesn't require a polished video. Some fans happen to be filmmakers and they express their love of the franchise that way, but every fan has a different background and skillset so we can't judge everyone by that standard.

- Can I play the Stargate theme with my own instrument?

No, but you can certainly show off your instrument and tell us all about whatever Stargate covers you may have performed. If there's something we can see on YouTube, tell us about it, or put up a link on-screen, and we'll check it out separately.
